

CITY AWARDS - OPEN HOUSE MADRID

1. INTRODUCTION

More than ever, cities face public challenges. Many cities are taking advantage of the experience and talent of professionals, as much as of citizens to confront these challenges.

OPEN HOUSE MADRID organizes the CITY AWARDS with the aim of recognizing the most innovative and social proposals, which will brand the future of the cities.

Innovative proposals are necessary to improve the world in which we live in. The globalization and technical revolution are generating economic and social changes that demand new responses. In order to respond to these new needs, entrepreneurial initiatives appear that focus on solving specific problems mainly through technological innovation.

These awards recognize both innovation and design as essential factors to bring quality of life to citizens. With them, it is also about fostering the culture of design and innovation in Spain, both in the professional field and in society as a whole.

2. CATEGORY

2.1 Best Urban Design

This award recognises projects about the creation of spaces, the construction of places and innovative projects that satisfy the current and future demands of urban life, taking into account the uses of energy and effective practice.

2.2 Best mobility programs

The award focuses on mobility initiatives that directly relate to our ways of life, especially related to the efficient use of transport. The projects may include the use of electric vehicles, individual and shared transport or the development of innovative strategies, to make the future of urban transport more ecological and comfortable.

2.3 Best innovation solution

This award recognises the innovation and technical solutions as the core of positive change in cities. It promotes the use and implementation of innovative technologies and progressive practices to support the design, the functioning of buildings, as well as the investigation within different practices and in the academic world.

2.4 Best Citizen Engagement

This category recognises the involvement of the community. It therefore is about projects that promote the participation of citizens in the transformation of their cities.

2.5 Best Use of Social Media

The digital footprint of a space can be a significant reflection of the space in the real world. The way in which we use social networks to involve the public, to promote politics, to attract tourism, investment or to create ideas, is an effective strategy to brand a space. We look for creative and innovative approaches and strategic methods in the world of social media that can produce effective results.
